Medication Safety Despite Visual Impairment

If you have difficulty managing your medications safely and independently due to visual impairment there are a number of options to help with medication identification.

- ◆ ScripTalk Labels and Talking Prescription Readers are available free-of-charge from many pharmacies. You will be able to hear your drug name, dosage, instructions, warnings and contraindications, pharmacy information, doctor name, prescription number, date and more. The ScripTalk Station is a prescription reader device. Simply press a button and place the special ScripTalk talking label over the reader. A pleasant natural sounding voice speaks all the information printed on the label. Because the data is stored in the label itself, it can be used on any size prescription container. The reader has volume control and speaks many languages. For more information on how to have your pharmacy participate and issue your prescriptions with a ScripTalk Station talk to your pharmacist or call En-Vision America at 1-800-890-1180.

- ◆ Label medicine containers with large white address labels with the medication name printed in large bold black print. The labels can be purchased at any office supply store. Alternately, ask your pharmacy to create a large print label for your medication.

- ◆ Use large print medicine storage containers that keep medication organized

- ◆ Use a talking pill identifier such as Tel-Rx Talking Prescription Recorder. The device vocally labels medication as to name and dosage and comes with several attachments for different size bottles.
